Completion

The overall graduation rate for students who began their studies in:

- 2014 was 56%
- 2013 was 50%
- 2012 was 59%
- 2011 was 33% (transfer rate was 40%)
- 2010 was 33% (transfer rate was 37%)

The reporting standard for completion specifies a time frame of 150% of published time to complete a bachelor's degree. (Thus, the reporting format allows six years to complete a four-year program.)

Please Note: Many colleges use a reporting formula for completion that excludes entering students who do not intend to finish a full four-year program at that college. St. Louis Christian College includes in its completion rate every First-Time Full-Time student, including those who perceive a benefit from enrolling for fewer credits than the number required to complete a degree. Colleges also may report students as completing a degree program who transfer to another college before doing so. St. Louis Christian College reports students who transfer to another college as non-completers.
